Introduction to IP and society

Intellectual property, comprised of the branches for patents, copyrights, designs and trade marks, is taking an increasingly important role in society and has an effect on almost all areas of our lives in one way or another.

Intellectual property is of central importance in the following areas:

› Swiss health foreign policy and access to therapeutic products
› Sustainable development/environment/agriculture
› Innovation
› Future scenarios